I have and I also know the difference between having a public profile and being famous. I've just recently read a novel called Fame, by Peter Carey. It is about a young man named Pat Kavanagh, who wakes up one morning and gets a phone call from the UK newspaper. They have identified him as one of the richest and most successful people in the world. They want to talk to him. He starts to make some phone calls of his own to find out what they want and wants from him. But there are things he doesn't know. There are events that didn't happen, people who aren't who they say they are and when he tries to find out the truth he finds himself involved in a convoluted world of high-powered people and the secrets they have to hide. He wants to find out what happened to his mother and he doesn't care that he might get into trouble in doing so. I think this is a really good book and one that will appeal to people who are interested in the underbelly of fame, who live in that very small club of the rich and famous and who have a really great story that is very hard to find out.Silane-functionalized, shape-persistent, silver(I) nanoclusters as versatile tools for biolabeling and bioimaging applications.
