
Erowid Methamphetamine Shake And Bake

Post Reaction Handling: This post assumes that you have just completed a HI reduction of ephedrine or pseudoephedrine to methamphetamine. Taking methamphetamine after a reaction can lead to liver damage, so it's best not to risk it. Some chemists who take higher doses of methamphetamine may experience nausea and stomach upset, so don't take too much at the same time. After taking methamphetamine, you should not immediately take ephedrine and pseudoephedrine. They can lead to an increase in the action and toxicity of methamphetamine. In any case, you shouldn't take them at the same time.
