i00 Trace IT is a free application that gives you the possibility to trace back your IP address by tabulating global pings and displaying the location of each address node on a world map. It can be used to easily locate your address, in order to find out your latitude and longitude global coordinates. In addition, the program will display extensive information about the IP address or website located, such as IP, name, location, global coordinates, domain and ping. Besides, you can view any additional notes and information about a target location. The program features an internal browser, so you can easily check if a webpage or IP address is valid and available before tracing it. Furthermore, you can set a home region, so that the application will know where from the search should start, an if there are any available connections or nodes to the target address. i00 Trace IT will also provide you with additional statistical data about the location of a target address, by displaying a graph that contains information about the trace-back steps and address nodes encountered. The display of addresses, connections and traced data can be easily changed, in order to better understand each node from the network and how is it connected to the others. The program can be set to retrieve data packets about a target address, by changing several values that take part in the accessing of certain packets. You can check the Time To Live(TTL) of certain packets, the maximum ping timeout, the packet size and amount of attempts ran in order to retrieve it. This way, data consistency is preserved and the program will return the correct values. when she resumed her visitations with the children.
