Privacy Policy Global Careers – Resources for the Care Sector The Care Sector has been the subject of many heated debates in recent years. There has been debate on how best to deal with the issue of the expanding size of a population, which has been growing at an alarming rate, and how best to fund the provision of care. But the challenges faced by care-workers are not new. What is new, however, is the scale of the challenge, the increasing demand for care and the way in which care is funded. According to a new report from the Joseph Rowntree Foundation (JRF) the Care Industry faces its greatest challenge since the inception of the social care system – at a time when demand is at its highest and while the cost of care is at its lowest. The Care Sector faces its biggest challenges since the inception of social care – when demand is at its highest and the cost of care is at its lowest. Since the inception of the social care system, demand has been rising at the highest rate in living memory, while the cost of care has been falling. The Care Industry says this is an unsustainable situation for both care providers and society. In a report called “Careers in the Care Sector”, the Care Sector’s main trade body, the British Association of Social Workers, states: “The Care Sector is facing its biggest challenge since the inception of the social care system. Demand is at its highest while the cost of care is at its lowest. Care providers – social services, health services, third sector organisations – are now in a major negotiation with government over funding, workload and access. They are also in the midst of a fundamental transformation of their organisation to improve their services in response to a growing range of service users and to the changing nature of care delivery 09e8f5149f
