Q: HTTP response while returning the exact header string I have an issue with my HTTP response while returning the header string. In my action, I created the Response in the same way, as the one on the example in the ASP.NET documentation, like that: `return Response.AppendHeader("Access-Control-Allow-Origin", "*");` When I use fiddler, I can see that the server is returning this header in the response: 'Access-Control-Allow-Origin': '*', The problem is that when I use the Chrome extension for Firebug, it shows me the following response: 'Access-Control-Allow-Origin': undefined So, my question is, why the server is returning a different value while returning the exact value as I have set. I know that this is the way the CORS works, but in my case, I want to avoid the client browser to get the exact header while getting the response with the server. A: Try setting `Response.StatusCode` to 200. When I faced this issue, I had a number of redirects in my code which left me with a 404. `return Response.StatusCode = 200;` Q: What does "you will be the stuff that dreams are made of" mean? In Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides, Jack Sparrow says this to Elizabeth: You will be the stuff that dreams are made of. What does this mean?
