I've tried something like this (in code):

```
[WebMethod(Description = "Inserts data into the datastore")] [ScriptMethod(ResponseFormat = ResponseFormat.Json)] public string InsertIntoDB(Person person) { string result = string.Empty; using (HttpClient httpClient = new HttpClient()) { using (HttpResponseBodyMessage response = httpClient.GetAsync(new Uri("")).Result) { if (response.IsSuccessStatusCode) { using (HttpContent content = response.Content) { string responseString = Encoding.UTF8.GetString(content.ReadAsByteArrayAsync().Result); result = responseString; } } }
```

No more keystrokes - key macro program for Windows XP/7. The program can be used as an alternative to Windows Explorer, it allows you to perform actions with a single click. To control the actions, you can set the parameters for individual options and even create key macros. The interface of the app is not out of the ordinary but fairly simple to work with. Once you load the encrypted ZIP archive into the workspace using either the file browser or "drag and drop" function, you can start configuring settings. The program offers multilingual support and may take a long while to find out the ZIP's password, according to its length and charset diversity. It has a good response time and includes a help file for less experienced users. We have not come across any issues in our tests, as the utility did not hang, crash or show error dialogs. Aside from some needed improvements in the visual department of the UI, Free ZIP Password Recovery should please the entire audience. ...
