I don't usually play checkers, but once in a while I just can't pass up a challenging game, and my wife has been known to play go-fish with me, so can't take a club to me, either. I also like watching action movies and TV shows; I've never seen "Friends" or "Seinfeld", but I still in my 40's am a huge fan of the four "Sheffield." I even have two Brits in my family - a cousin and an aunt. Lucky for me, they are both awesome, and talk like me. I am a still life photographer who is interested in many different aspects of the photography industry. One thing I am interested in is learning the latest technology in photographic equipment. I am fascinated by the newest cameras, lenses and accessories. I enjoy taking pictures and I like to help those who are new to the business of photography get started. I have been told that recently I also have a knack for technical writing! Every year I try to learn something new that I hope will benefit my photography and make me a better photographer. As I teach myself new skills and technologies, I keep up with the latest equipment and techniques. It's important to be rigorous about the type of work you produce. Photographers generally create stories through their photographs, and they learn to see the colors and shapes seen in an image. In this sense, these are captured moments; the moments that make the photographs. In the digital age, the most important asset we have is our ability to capture and preserve these moments for later. Photography preserves these moments for our youth, a growing global posterity.
